S. 322
Alpine Lakes Wilderness Additions and Pratt and Middle Fork Snoqualmie Rivers Protection Act

As ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources on November 10, 2011

S. 322 would add more than 22,000 acres of public land in the state of Washington to the Alpine Lakes Wilderness. The bill also would designate about 27 miles of waterways in the area as wild or scenic rivers. Based on information provided by the Forest Service, which administers most of the affected land, CBO estimates that implementing S. 322 would have no significant impact on the federal budget. Enacting the legislation would not affect revenues or direct spending; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures do not apply.

The acreage and waterways to be added by the legislation to the National Wilderness Preservation System and the Wild and Scenic Rivers System are currently administered by the Forest Service or owned by the state. CBO estimates that minimal additional resources would be required to manage the affected areas as a result of the new designations. We expect that any costs to revise brochures, maps, and signs would not be significant because most such revisions would take place in conjunction with scheduled reprinting and routine maintenance.

Finally, we estimate that enacting the legislation would have no effect on offsetting receipts because the affected lands, which are already managed for conservation purposes, currently generate no receipts, and CBO expects that they would not generate receipts over the next 10 years.

S. 322 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.
