

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

August 25, 2004

S. 1530 Tribal Parity Act

As ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs on July 14, 2004

SUMMARY

S. 1530 would increase the total amounts to be transferred from the Treasury into two existing Indian tribal trust funds. Those funds were created to compensate the Crow Creek Sioux and Lower Brule Sioux tribes for damages caused by the Pick-Sloan water projects along the Missouri River. CBO estimates that enacting S. 1530 would increase direct spending by $226 million over the 2004-2014 period. Enacting the bill would not affect revenues.

S. 1530 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

ESTIMATED COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

The estimated budgetary impact of S. 1530 is shown in the table below. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 450 (community and regional development).

BASIS OF ESTIMATE

For this estimate, CBO assumes that the bill will be enacted this fall and that payments to the two tribes will begin in fiscal year 2005.

The Crow Creek Sioux Tribe Infrastructure Development Trust Fund (Crow Creek Fund) and the Lower Brule Sioux Tribe Infrastructure Development Trust Fund (Lower Brule Fund) were created by Congress in 1996 and 1997 to compensate the Crow Creek and Lower Brule Sioux tribes for damages caused by the Pick-Sloan water projects along the Missouri River. The Crow Creek Fund was fully capitalized to its authorized size with one payment of $28 million in 1997. The Lower Brule Fund was fully capitalized to its authorized size with one payment of $39 million in 1998.

S. 1530 would increase the maximum size of each fund, with the additional deposits to be derived from proceeds from the sale of electric power from the Pick-Sloan Missouri River Basin project. Each fund would receive an amount equal to 25 percent of the annual proprietary receipts from that project until deposits reach the new maximum levels specified in the bill. Under this bill, the Crow Creek Fund would increase by $78 million (for a new maximum of $106 million), and the Lower Brule Fund by $148 million (for a new maximum of $187 million).

According to the Western Area Power Administration (WAPA), the agency that administers the Pick-Sloan project, receipts from the Pick-Sloan project are likely to total $110 million in 2005 and average about $119 million a year thereafter. That suggests that up to $30 million would be deposited in each fund each year until the new ceilings are met. At those levels, CBO estimates that it would take about three years to reach the new maximum level for the Crow Creek fund and five years for the Lower Brule Fund.

Payments to certain trust funds that are held and managed in a fiduciary capacity by the federal government on behalf of Indian tribes are treated as payments to a nonfederal entity. Thus, under this bill, CBO expects that the entire amount deposited to either fund in any year would be recorded as budget authority and outlays in that year. Because the trust funds would be nonbudgetary, the subsequent use of such funds by the tribe would not affect federal outlays.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL AND PRIVATE-SECTOR IMPACT

S. 1530 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in UMRA and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments. Enacting this legislation would benefit the two tribes.
